What is Account-Based Marketing?

Instead of marketing to thousands of companies, ABM flips the funnel — you focus on the 50–100 companies that can create the biggest impact for your business.

Targeted

Precise focus on the highest-value accounts

Personalized

Every touchpoint tailored to the account

Relationship Driven

Built on trust, not volume

Revenue Focused

Measured by business outcomes, not just leads

Why ABM Works for Industrial Companies

ABM is uniquely suited for complex B2B sales environments where deals are high-value and relationships matter most.

Higher Win Rates

Focused outreach on pre-qualified, high-fit accounts converts at a significantly higher rate than broad campaigns.

Shorter Sales Cycles

Personalized engagement with all stakeholders accelerates consensus and speeds up decision-making.

Larger Deal Sizes

Targeting enterprise accounts means bigger order values, longer contracts, and higher lifetime value.

Better Sales-Marketing ROI

Every rupee spent targets accounts that can actually buy — eliminating wasted spend on unqualified leads.

Identify Your Dream Accounts

Quality beats quantity. Choose companies based on clear, objective criteria that predict fit and purchase potential.

Industry & Sector

Focus on verticals where your solution has the strongest track record and relevance.

Revenue & Employee Size

Target companies with the budget scale and headcount to make meaningful purchases.

Location & Geography

Prioritize accounts within reachable markets for in-person visits and relationship building.

Growth & Technology Fit

Prioritize companies expanding operations and actively investing in new capabilities.

Build the Buying Committee

One deal often involves multiple stakeholders — reach the right people with the right message at the right time.

CEO / MD

Strategic vision and final investment approval.

Plant Head / Operations

Day-to-day impact, uptime, and workflow fit.

Purchase Manager

Vendor management, contracts, and cost control.

Technical Head

Evaluate specifications, feasibility, and performance.

Finance Team

Review ROI, budget impact, and financial risk.

Personalize Every Interaction

The more relevant the message, the higher the response. Generic outreach is ignored — personalization wins attention and trust.

Personalized Emails

Reference the account's specific challenges, industry, and goals in every message.

LinkedIn Engagement

Comment on their posts, share relevant insights, and connect with all buying committee members.

Industry Case Studies

Share success stories from similar companies in the same sector and size range.

Custom Presentations

Build account-specific decks that speak directly to their pain points and business context.

Align Sales & Marketing

ABM works only when both teams collaborate on the same accounts with a shared definition of success.

Marketing

- Build awareness with target accounts
- Create personalized content & campaigns
- Run LinkedIn ads to buying committee
- Deliver warm accounts to sales

Sales

- Execute personalised outreach
- Book and run discovery meetings
- Consistent multi-touch follow-ups
- Close and expand the account

Multi-Channel ABM Strategy

Stay visible across every touchpoint — consistent presence across channels builds familiarity and drives response.

Email

Personalised sequences addressing specific account pain points.

LinkedIn

Targeted ads and direct engagement with buying committee members.

Calls

Warm, research-backed calls that open real conversations.

Website & WhatsApp

Retargeting and direct messaging for quick, personal communication.

Site Visits

In-person meetings to build trust and accelerate decisions.

Measure ABM Success

Track these metrics consistently to refine your approach and demonstrate revenue impact to leadership.

Metric	Benchmark	Goal
Target Accounts Engaged	30–50%	50%+
Meetings Booked	10–20% of targets	20%+
Buying Committee Contacts	2–3 per account	4–5 per account
Opportunities Created	15–25%	25%+
Revenue Generated	Varies by segment	3:1 ROI+

Common ABM Mistakes to Avoid

ABM is a precision strategy — these critical errors will undermine results and waste your team's effort.

→ Targeting Too Many Accounts

ABM requires focus. Spreading across hundreds of accounts dilutes personalization and kills effectiveness.

→ Generic Messaging

Copy-paste outreach is ignored. Every message must reference the account's specific context and challenges.

→ No Research Before Outreach

Reaching out without understanding the account's business signals low effort and erodes trust instantly.

→ Poor Sales-Marketing Collaboration

Both teams must share account lists, messaging, and feedback loops — or ABM fails at execution.

→ Measuring Only Leads

ABM success is measured by meetings booked, pipeline created, and revenue closed — not just lead volume.

Key Takeaways

ABM is about building relationships — not chasing volume. Keep these principles at the centre of every campaign.

01

Focus on Quality Accounts

Select 50–100 high-fit companies rather than casting a wide, unfocused net.

02

Research Before Outreach

Understand each account's business, challenges, and buying committee before the first contact.

03

Personalize Every Communication

Tailor messaging to the individual, the role, and the account — at every single touchpoint.

04

Align Sales & Marketing

Shared account lists, shared goals, and consistent follow-ups are non-negotiable for ABM success.

05

Measure Business Outcomes

Track meetings, pipeline, and revenue — not just open rates or impressions.
